In a new report, the UK's biggest recycling and waste management company, UK Waste Management (UKWM), has highlighted a number of reasons why it says food waste should be seen as an issue not a cost. Firstly, UKWM says that there are many opportunities that are presented by food waste, and that whilst it is a matter of cost, there is also value, including opportunities for a circular economy. In particular, the company says that there is an opportunity to turn unsold food waste into biogas and then produce energy in local low carbon energy plants. UKWM also says that the money that is currently spent by companies on food waste can be used for a number of other things. For example, it says there is opportunity in the recycling sector to improve the recycling rate and therefore reduce the amount of waste that has to be collected. In addition, the report highlights the money that is saved when products are sold
